Why change your air filters?

Changing your air filters regularly is important to help keep the air around you fresh and free from pollutants and odours.

Fresh Air
MVHR systems manage cleaning the air within your home, supplying new air and filtering out pollen and dirt.

Health Benefits
Efficient filters reduce tree and grass pollen, and humidity and moisture to prevent mould.

Energy Efficiency
Clean filters reduce energy consumption.

Filter Replacement Frequency
Filter changes are vital for clean indoor air. In cities, replace every six months, annually elsewhere.

Which filters do you need?

Optimising your filtration

Most MVHR units have two filters, one for the incoming fresh air and one for the out-going stale air.

You can optimise the filtration of the MVHR filter by increasing the quality of the filter on the incoming air.

This will ensure the air entering the property is as clean as possible. The outgoing stale air can continue to use the lower grade filter.
