The Cambridge Circuit Company Ltd confirm that, to the best of our knowledge, the printed circuit boards we supply do not contain any of the substances prohibited in the Restriction of Hazardous Substances directive (2002/95/EWG) provided that you or your customer has not specified any Tin/Lead alloy solder coating.

If such coating continues to be specified we will assume you or your customers' products are exempt from the directive.

Our Certificate of Conformity will confirm the RoHS compliance/non-compliance for each batch of boards.
