

Optimum ESD-Safe Dispensing Components

Prevent static buildup in electronics manufacturing

ESD-safe dispensing components prevent part damage and minimize rejects.

Apply extremely accurate, precise micro-deposits with ESD-safe dispensing tips.

Nordson EFD's Optimum® ESD-safe black dispensing components prevent static buildup when dispensing adhesives, pastes, coatings, and other assembly fluids used in manufacturing electronic products.

ESD-safe (aka electrostatic dissipative) syringe barrels, dispensing tips, and adapter assemblies are designed specifically for precision fluid applications used in manufacturing mobile devices, wearables, medical devices, fiber optics, and other electronic products.

These dispensing components provide the highly accurate, repeatable micro-deposits required as electronic devices shrink in size and the density of electronic components increase. Preventing static buildup also inhibits damage to fragile semiconductors and printed circuit boards — minimizing costly rejects.

Features

- Static decay rate less than 2.0 seconds
- Surface resistance less than 1×10^{11} ohms
- High conductivity
- Certified safe for industrial use
- Made in silicone-free facilities in the USA

Benefits

- Meets industry standards that ensure static will not be transferred while dispensing
- Molded from an inert, non-carbon, non-surface-migratory material that's safe, even for sensitive fluids
- Dispense tips free of flash and burrs for precise, repeatable deposits
- Syringe barrels with Zero Draft™ walls that provide clean wiping and prevent blow-by
