The SL20 sliding system can be used in glass canopies to protect from wind and weather, or as a simple partition. Its ease of use is particularly impressive. The intelligent catching function makes moving the all-glass elements child's play. The individual panels are guided along flat floor tracks, providing an accessible transition to the outdoors.

In addition to this, the sliding system can be used as a fully transparent corner solution. The elements can be set up to slide to your desired direction, and a framed variant and a locking mechanism with a range of different handles are available as option. This system can also be paired with the Solarlux SDL Atrium plus to create a glass canopy/house.
